EDITOR'S NOTES

My most important news for you in this issue is that Family Findings will have a new Editor beginning with the January 1979 issue. Perhaps "recycled" would better describe Mary Anne Mitchell than "new". Mary Anne was our very first Editor and got our quarterly off to a fine beginning. I feel very comfortable leaving the job in her capable hands. It has been increasingly difficult for me during the past year since I began working part-time in September 1977. I have enjoyed serving as Editor, however, and have especially appreciated your cooperation in furnishing us with a variety of materials for Family Findings. My thanks to each of you who contributed. A very special thank-you goes to each of the Corresponding Secretaries who have served our Society while I have been Editor. Marian Martin and Eloise Phillips have each been a joy to work with and have done much to smooth the way for me.

To all our members: Please continue to send your Bible records, cemetery records, unpublished county records (especially West Tennessee counties other than Madison) and news items from old newspapers. Family Findings is only as good as you make it. Mrs. Mitchell's address: Mrs. L. R. Mitchell, 72 Woodhaven Drive, Jackson, TN. 38301.

CONTRIBUTORS TO THIS ISSUE

PRESERVING FAMILY PAPERS

Are you storing important family papers in the attic or basement? If so, you're unwittingly helping them to deteriorate faster than they should says Penn State's Anthony J. Vennett. To preserve papers Vennett advises:

*Avoid storing papers in places that are excessively hot or moist.

*Roll rather than fold papers.

*Store papers in a dark place.

*Never store documents with paper clips or staples.

They may rust and leave a stain

DO YOU KNOW ANY BITS OF MADISON COUNTY HISTORY

(Edited by Charles W. McMillin)

(This article was taken from The Jackson Sun some 30 odd years ago and shared with us by Robert Nolen.)

Today's mail brought a letter that we believe will prove of interest to readers of this column. The contents of the letter follows:

"I have a bit of pioneer history that might be of interest (thank you, sir for the next words of the letter) to those interested in Madison County history. Referring to an article I had published in "The Jackson Gazette in November 1899, my story is as follows:

"About ten miles north of Jackson, in the southern edge of the Forked Deer River bottoms, is an old cemetery—known as the Lynch family graveyard. It is surrounded by a brick wall about 60 feet square, 5 feet high and 1 foot thick, and has no means of entrance. Within these walls are four graves. Near the center is a brick vault containing three bodies; at the west end of which is a brick wall 8 feet high, 16 feet long and 1 foot thick. Inset in this wall are two marble slabs; the first bearing the following inscription: "Sacred to the memory of John and Annie Lynch. John Lynch was born September 1769 and died June 14, 1842. Annie Lynch was born Oct. 17, 1768 and died February 24, 1834. The second: Sacred to the memory of Christopher Lynch, son of John and Annie Lynch, was born April 11, 1797, and died Oct. 27, 1844.

In the southwest corner of the enclosure is the fourth grave, vaulted like the other three, and has the following inscription: "Sacred to the memory of Nathaniel D. Landcaster, son of John A. and Adelaid M. Landcaster of Richmond, Va., was born Feb. 26, 1825 and died in Holly Springs, Miss., August 24, 1844."

This cemetery is a short distance from the south bank of the Middle Fork of the Forked Deer River, and about one-half mile below what was known as the "Double Bridges" — which were the Medina road and the I.C. R.R. (Signed) J. Clarence Smith."

In chapter CCI of the Acts of the General Assembly of Tennessee, Sterling Brewer, James Fentress and Abram Murry were appointed commissioners to establish permanent seats of justice in the counties of Henry, Henderson and Madison. And they were authorized to acquire as much as fifty acres of land for such county town to be established near the center of the respective counties. The Act directed that the streets were to be ninety feet wide, with four acres reserved in the center of the town as a site for a courthouse, and that suitable lands were to be reserved for the establishment of a jail. At this time James Fentress was the Speaker of the House of Representatives and Sterling Brewer was Speaker of the Senate.

(Note: The next paragraph is, regardless of previously reported data, as unimpeachable as the State of Tennessee. THIS is history.)

On June 3, 1822, the State of Tennessee granted to John McNairy, William E. Butler and Joseph Phillips five hundred acres of land comprising Entry No. 13, the west line of this entry running in the center of what is now Market Street and Highland Avenue from the present location of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railroad to a point distance beyond Deaderick Avenue, and the entry extended eastwardly between parallel lines to points beyond Hays Avenue. The land lying immediately west of No. 13 was granted to Thomas Shannon by Entry No. 2, comprising about 171 acres.

Running across this item in an old scrapbook, we were at first at a loss to understand how previous accounts of the very beginning of Jackson could have been so much at variance with this unimpeachable version. Then, as we hope you will do, we started trying to figure just why TWO authentic records could be so different. The more we figured the closer we came to the actual truth of the matter; they are both right! Only different versions of the same thing. Each version had details that the other lacked.

In a day or so, we hope to publish a story from the scrapbook of Miss Patsy Russell, granddaughter of Mr. Jesse Russell, one of the early settlers of Jackson.
